A REGISTRY OF STUDIES IN ART EDUCATION

Volume 19, 1977-78

DENNIS W. WHITE

ARTICLES INDEX

Articles by Title

Art and learning: Partners in educational process. Brigham, D. 19(3), 25-32.

Art attitude: Conceptualization and implication. Morris, J.W., and Stuckhardt, M.H. 19(1), 21-28.

The arts—Working together to make education work: An idea whose time has come. Saunders, R.J. 19(3), 14-20.

Coming to whose senses? Potential impact of a national arts education policy. Johnson, N., and Ciganko, R. 19(3), 21-24.

The effect of critical comparisons upon children's drawings. Rosenstiel, A.K., and Gardner, H. 19(1), 36-44.

The effects of scanning practice and perceptual training upon several visual functions: Implications for drawing. Szeto, J.W., and Salome, R.A. 19(1), 45-51

An historical review of doctoral program growth and dissertation research in art education 1893-1974. White, D.W. 19(1), 6-20.

Ideologies of art education. Giffhorn, H. 19(2), 50-60.

Influence of style and subject matter on the development of children's art preferences. Hardiman, G., and Zernich, T. 19(1), 29-35.

The need for critical examination of belief claims in art education. DiBlasio, M.K. 19(2), 6-9.

Not a report but a call to action—Brief commentaries on Coming to Our Senses: The Significance of the Arts for American Education. Lewis, H.P. 19(3), 54-56.

Not one single new idea of consequence—Brief commentaries on Coming to Our Senses: The Significance of the Arts for American Education. Lanier, V. 19(3), 61-63.

Omissions reduce the value of the Report—Brief commentaries on Coming to Our Senses: The Significance of the Arts for American Education. McFee, J.K. 19(3), 57-59.

Priorities for arts in everyday living and education. Kuhn, M. 19(3), 46-49.

Reflections on the head of Medusa. Collins, G.C. 19(2), 10-18.

Related arts: Doctoral dissertation research 1893-1974. White, D.W. 19(3), 41-45.

Relating the arts to education: The history of an idea. Efland, A. 19(3), 5-13.

A REGISTRY OF STUDIES IN ART EDUCATION

Volume 19, 1977-78

DENNIS W. WHITE

ARTICLES INDEX

Articles by Title

Art and learning: Partners in educational process. Brigham, D. 19(3), 25-32.

Art attitude: Conceptualization and implication. Morris, J.W., and Stuckhardt, M.H. 19(1), 21-28.

The arts—Working together to make education work: An idea whose time has come. Saunders, R.J. 19(3), 14-20.

Coming to whose senses? Potential impact of a national arts education policy. Johnson, N., and Ciganko, R. 19(3), 21-24.

The effect of critical comparisons upon children's drawings. Rosenstiel, A.K., and Gardner, H. 19(1), 36-44.

The effects of scanning practice and perceptual training upon several visual functions: Implications for drawing. Szeto, J.W., and Salome, R.A. 19(1), 45-51

An historical review of doctoral program growth and dissertation research in art education 1893-1974. White, D.W. 19(1), 6-20.

Ideologies of art education. Giffhorn, H. 19(2), 50-60.

Influence of style and subject matter on the development of children's art preferences. Hardiman, G., and Zernich, T. 19(1), 29-35.

The need for critical examination of belief claims in art education. DiBlasio, M.K. 19(2), 6-9.

Not a report but a call to action—Brief commentaries on Coming to Our Senses: The Significance of the Arts for American Education. Lewis, H.P. 19(3), 54-56.

Not one single new idea of consequence—Brief commentaries on Coming to Our Senses: The Significance of the Arts for American Education. Lanier, V. 19(3), 61-63.

Omissions reduce the value of the Report—Brief commentaries on Coming to Our Senses: The Significance of the Arts for American Education. McFee, J.K. 19(3), 57-59.

Priorities for arts in everyday living and education. Kuhn, M. 19(3), 46-49.

Reflections on the head of Medusa. Collins, G.C. 19(2), 10-18.

Related arts: Doctoral dissertation research 1893-1974. White, D.W. 19(3), 41-45.

Relating the arts to education: The history of an idea. Efland, A. 19(3), 5-13.

The Report: A useful addition to the professional literature—Brief commentaries on Coming to Our Senses: The Significance of the Arts for American Education. Day, M. 19(3), 59-61.

Special Feature/Excerpts from Coming to Our Senses: The Significance of the Arts for American Education. 19(1), 66-69.

The study of art. Kern, E. 19(3), 50-53.

Teachers' preference in children's drawings. Zurmuehlen, M. 19(1), 52-65.

The use of participant observation in the evaluation of art programs. Bersson, R.D. 19(2), 61-67.

Using our heads while coming to our senses. Acuff, B. 19(3), 33-40.

Validating a model for art and aesthetic awareness activities: Results of an experimental study. Stahl, R.J., and Webster, N.C. 19(2), 19-33.

A walk in the right direction: A model for visual arts. Clark, G.A., and Zimmerman, E. 19(2), 34-49.

Articles by Authors

Acuff, B. Using our heads while coming to our senses. 19(3), 33-40.

Bersson, R.D. The use of participant observation in the evaluation of art programs. 19(2), 61-67.

Brigham, D. Art and learning: Partners in educational process. 19(3), 25-32.

Clark, G.A., and Zimmerman, E. A walk in the right direction: A model for visual arts. 19(2), 34-49.

Collins, G.C. Reflections on the head of Medusa. 19(2), 10-18.

Day, M. The Report: A useful addition to the professional literature—Brief commentaries on Coming to Our Senses: The Significance of the Arts for American Education. 19(3), 59-61.

DiBlasio, M.K. The need for critical examination of belief claims in art education. 19(2), 6-9.

Efland, A. Relating the arts to education: The history of an idea. 19(3), 5-13.

Giffhorn, H. Ideologies of art education. 19(2), 50-60.

Hardiman, G., and Zernich, T. Influence of style and subject matter on the development of children's art preferences. 19(1), 29-35.

Johnson, N., and Ciganko, R. Coming to whose senses? Potential impact of a national arts education policy. 19(3), 21-24.

Kern, E. The study of art. 19(3), 50-53.

Kuhn, M. Priorities for arts in everyday living and education. 19(3), 46-49.

Lanier, V. Not a single new idea of consequence—Brief commentaries on Coming to Our Senses: The Significance of the Arts for American Education. 19(3), 61-63.

Lewis, H.P. Not a report but a call to action—Brief commentaries on Coming to Our Senses: The Significance of the Arts for American Education. 19(3), 54-56.

McFee, J.K. Omissions reduce the value of the Report—Brief commentaries on Coming to Our Senses: The Significance of the Arts for American Education. 19(3), 57-59.

Morris, J.W., and Stuckhardt, M.H. Art Attitude: Conceptualization and implication. 19(1), 21-28.

Rosenstiel, A.K., and Gardner, H. The effect of critical comparisons upon children's drawings. 19(1), 36-44.

Saunders, R.J. The arts—working together to make education work: An idea whose time has come. 19(3), 14-20.

Stahl, R.J., and Webster, N.C. Validating a model for art and aesthetic awareness activities: Results of an experimental study. 19(2), 19-33.

Szeto, J.W., and Salome, R.A. The effects of scanning practice and perceptual training upon several visual functions: Implications for drawing. 19(1), 45-51.

White, D.W. An historical review of doctoral program growth and dissertation research in art education 1893-1974. 19(1), 6-20.

White, D.W. Related Arts: Doctoral dissertation research 1893-1974. 19(3), 41-45.

Zurmuehlen, M. Teacher's preference in children's drawings. 19(1), 52-65.

Annotations by Reviewer

1977, 19(1)

19(1), 5
Editorial. Chapman, L.H.
A short introduction concerning the content of the issue, and announcement of new members serving on the editorial board.

19(1), 6-20
An historical review of doctoral program growth and dissertation research in art education 1893-1974. White, D.W.
A summarized report concerned with developmental trends of the factors delineated in the title.

19(1), 21-28
Art attitude: Conceptualization and Implication. Morris, J.W., and Stuckhardt, M.H.
A discussion of various uses of the term attitude within the art education field with an accompanying definition of the term applicable to art and art-related referents.

19(1), 29-35
Influence of style and subject matter on development of children's art preferences. Hardiman, G.W., and Zernich, T.
A report of a descriptive study concerned with factors mentioned in the title, with particular emphasis placed on gaining an insight into varying mediating factors that may affect children's responses to visual arts stimuli.

19(1), 36-44
The effect of critical comparisons upon children's drawings. Rosenstiel, A.K., and Gardner, H.

A report of a descriptive study designed to explore adolescent drawing behavior.

19(1), 45-51

The effects of scanning practice and perceptual training upon several visual functions: Implications for drawing. Szeto, J.W., and Salome, R.A.

The report of an experimental investigation to determine treatment effects, on five perceptual functions.

19(1), 52-65

Teachers' preference in children's drawings. Zurmuehlen, M.

A descriptive survey concerned with factors mentioned in the title.

19(1), 66-69

Special feature/Excerpts from Coming to Our Senses: The Significance of the Arts for American Education.

A presentation of excerpts from the report prepared by The Arts, Education and Americans Panel, chaired by David Rockefeller, Jr.

1978, 19(2)

19(2), 4-5

Editorial. Chapman, L.H.

A brief introduction concerned with value orientations in art education theory and research.

19(2), 6-9

The need for critical examination of belief claims in art education. DiBlasio, M.K.

An analysis of basic concepts in art education with special attention given to their value-laden properties.

19(2), 10-18

Reflections on the head of Medusa. Collins, G.C.

An exploration of the idea of feminine sensibility and how this concept might be incorporated in either a positive or negative manner in the teaching of art.

19(2), 19-33

Validating a model for art and aesthetic awareness activities: Results of an experimental study. Stahl, R.J., and Webster, M.C.

An experimental study indicating that individuals can acquire a comprehension of various art concepts as a result of paper and pencil techniques.

19(2), 34-49

A walk in the right direction: A model for visual arts education. Clark, G.A., and Zimmerman, E.

An argument that the roles and activities associated with the professional artist, art critic, art historian, and aesthetician should be models for a visual arts program.

19(2), 50-60

Ideologies of art education. Giffhorn, H.

An examination of the social and political consequences of varying ideologies and rationales for art education.

19(2), 61-67

The use of participant observation in the evaluation of art programs. Bersson, R.D.

An examination of the research methodology identified in the title for specific types of systematic inquiry.

1978, 19(3)

19(3), 3-4

Editorial, Chapman, L.H.

A introduction which focuses on the various contributions of the authors included in this issue devoted to topics and issues raised by the publication, Coming to Our Senses: The Significance of the Arts for American Education–A Panel Report.

19(3), 5-13

Relating the arts to education: The history of an idea. Efland, A.

An examination of several philosophical viewpoints which might support the idea of relating the arts. Special attention is given to contradictory positions contained within the Report.

19(3), 14-20

The arts—Working together to make education work: An idea whose time has come. Saunders, R.J.

An historical review of interest in relationships among the arts.

19(3), 21-24

Coming to whose senses? Potential impact of a national arts education policy. Johnson, N., and Ciganko, R.

An analysis of the report from a sociological and political perspective, with particular interest given the Report's potential impact if uncritically endorsed and supported by individuals in a position to effect a national policy in arts education.

19(3), 25-31

Art and learning: Partners in educational process. Brigham, D.C.

The presentation and justification for interdisciplinary arts programs with examples drawn from the Visual Arts Interdisciplinary Concepts Curriculum of Attleboro, Massachusetts.

19(3), 33-40

Using our heads while coming to our senses. Acuff, B.

A review of research on the development of children's symbolization abilities in the arts followed by critical analysis which draws attention to conceptual and practical problems in programs that attempt to relate the arts to one another and to other disciplines.

19(3), 41-45

Related arts: Doctoral dissertation research 1893-1974. White, D.W.

An historical review of doctoral dissertations directed to related arts endeavors which concludes that the well-publicized interest in related arts programs does not appear to be supported by a substantial body of scholarly study.

19(3), 46-49
Priorities for arts in everyday living and education. Kuhn, M.
An argument for increased arts interaction with the goal of life-long education, making art an everyday living experience.

19(3), 50-53
The study of art. Kern E.J.
A brief critique of art programs based on the production of art work via the "cafeteria approach", with a recommendation that the central focus of instruction be redirected to study of the unique nature of art.

19(3), 54-56
Not a report but a call to action. Lewis, H.P.
A study of the recommendations suggested in the Report with particular stress on the inherent weakness of those positions.

19(3), 57-59
Omissions reduce the value of the Report. McFee, J.K.
An analysis of the shortcomings of the Report with special attention paid to the failure of the document to provide a realistic overview of education arts programs within the present and past social context.

19(3), 59-61
The Report: A useful addition to the professional literature. Day, M.
A positive response to the Report which focuses on the general utility of the document.

19(3), 61-63
Not a single new idea of consequence. Lanier, V.
A commentary which challenges the foundations of the Report and the recommendations of the panel.

METHODOLOGY INDEX

Descriptive/Experimental Research

Hardiman, G.W., and Zernich, T. Influence of style and subject matter on the development of children's art preferences. 19(1), 29-35.

Rosenstiel, A.K., and Gardner, H. The effect of critical comparisons upon children's drawings. 19(1), 36-44.

Stahl, R.J., and Webster, N.C. Validating a model for art and aesthetic awareness activities: Results of an experimental study. 19(2), 19-33.

Szeto, J.W., and Salome, R.A. The effects of scanning practice and perceptual training upon several visual functions: Implications for drawing. 19(1), 45-51.

Zurmuehlen, M. Teacher's preferences in children's drawings. 19(1), 52-65.

Historical Research

White, D.W. An historical review of doctoral program growth and dissertation research in art education 1893-1974.19(1), 6-20.

White, D.W. Related arts: Doctoral dissertation research 1893-1974. 19(3), 41-45.

Philosophical Research

Efland, A. Relating the arts to education: The history of an idea. 19(3), 5-13.

Giffhorn, H. Ideologies of art education. 19(2), 50-60.

Morris, J.W., and Stuckhardt. Art Attitude: Conceptualization and Implication. 19(1), 21-28.

Tests and Measures

Card Rotations Test (Szeto and Salome). 19(1), 45-51.

Gestalt Completion Test (Szeto and Salome). 19(1), 45-51.

Hidden Patterns Test (Szeto and Salome). 19(1), 45-51.

Identical Pictures Test (Szeto and Salome). 19(1), 45-51.

Maccoby-Rau Embedded Figures Test 19(1), 45-51.

Semilogarithmic scale (White). 19(1), 6-20.

ISSUES INDEX

Acuff, B. Using our heads while coming to our senses. 19(3), 33-40.

Bersson, R.D. The use of participant observation in the evaluation of art programs. 19(2), 61-67.

Brigham, D.L. Art and Learning: Partners in educational process. 19(3), 25-32.

Clark, G.A., and Zimmerman E. A walk in the right direction: A model for visual arts education. 19(2), 34-49.

Collins, G.C. Reflections on the head of Medusa. 19(2), 10-18.

Day, M. The Report: A useful addition to the professional literature—Brief commentaries on Coming to Our Senses: The Significance of the Arts for American Education. 19(3), 59-61.

DiBlasio, M.K. The need for critical examination of belief claims in art education. 19(2), 6-9.

Johnson, N., and Ciganko R. Coming to whose senses? Potential impact of a national arts education policy. 19(3), 21-24.

Kern, E.J. The study of art. 19(3), 50-53.

Kuhn, M. Priorities for art in everyday living and education. 19(3), 46-49.

Lanier, V. Not a single new idea of consequence—Brief commentaries on Coming to Our Senses: The Significance of the Arts for American Education. 19(3), 61-63.

Lewis, H.P. Not a report but a call to action—Brief commentaries on Coming to Our Senses: The Significance of the Arts for American Education. 19(3), 54-56.

McFee, J.K. Omissions reduce the value of the Report—Brief commentaries on Coming to Our Senses: The Significance of the Arts for American Education. 19(3), 57-59.

Saunders, R.J. The arts—Working together to make education work: An idea whose time has come. 19(3), 14-20.

REVIEW INDEX

Books by Title

Art and human values, (Rader and Jessup), 19(2), 68-70.

Regaining educational leadership: Critical essays on PBTE/CBTE, behavioral objectives and accountability, (Smith, ed.), 19(3), 64-66.

Books by Authors

Rader, M., and Jessup, B./Art and human values, 19(2), 68-70.

Smith, R.A., ed./Regaining educational leadership: Critical essays on PBTE/CBTE, behavioral objectives and accountability, 19(3), 64-66.

Books by Reviewer

Efland, A./Regaining educational leadership: Critical essays on PBTE/CBTE behavioral objectives and accountability (Smith, ed.), 19(3), 64-66.

Marshall, H.J./Art and human values (Rader and Jessup), 19(2), 68-70.

Research by Title

A registry of Studies in Art Education: Volume 19, 1977-78. White, D.W. 19(3), 67-72.

Research by Author

White, D.W. A registry of Studies in Art Education: Volume 19, 1977-78. 19(3), 67-72.

Dennis W. White is chair of art education at the University of Houston, Texas.